YORK COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

MORE than twenty years ago Mr. Samuel Small, Sr., then one of York's most venerable and honored citizens, conceived the idea of providing, in his own town, means for the liberal education of its youth. While his heart was full of the project it happened that he and his estimable wife attended an anniversary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, at Norwich, Conn. The Norwich Free Academy, in its general design and appointments seemed to embody almost his own idea. Its managers offered him every facility in pursuit of his inquiries, and afterwards one of its patrons, then Gov. Buckingham, of Connecticut, wrote him more fully of its merits. Mr. Small returned to York, with his long cherished ideas in definite shape, and at once proceeded to execute them.

The present site, on the northeast corner of South Duke Street and what has since been known as College Avenue, was chosen, and in 1871 the corner stone of the first building was laid. As it neared completion steps were taken to perfect the organization of the Institute. On Monday evening, April 14, 1873, by invitation of Mr. Small, the following persons met in the chapel of the Presbyterian Church in York, viz.: Rev. H. E. Niles, pastor of the church, and Mr. Small's fellow Elders, James W. Kerr, M. D., David E. Small and John M. Brown. Also Messrs. Samuel Small, Jr., James Kell, Henry L. Fisher, W. Latimer Small, Samuel S. Hersh, and Jacob H. Huber. The meeting was opened with prayer and then Mr. Small presented a paper containing his plan for the foundation of a public literary and religious institution in this community, and naming as Trustees for said institution the above mentioned persons together with Messrs. John H. Small, Rev. J. W. Cowhick, Rev. C. W. Stewart, and Rev. C. P. Wing, D. D. Samuel Small, Sr., was chosen President, Rev. H. E. Niles, Secretary, and Samuel Small, Jr., Treasurer. H. L. Fisher and James Kell, Esqs., were appointed a committee to obtain a charter.

At a meeting in the following August Rev. James McDougall, Jr., of Long Island, N. Y., was elected President, and Samuel B. Heiges, of York, Pa., Professor of Mathematics and Natural Sciences.

On September 15th the Institute was opened for students, with the following instructors, viz.: Miss S. L. Otis, English; Rev. P. Anstadt, German; Miss M. E. Prince, Music. The dedication services and the inauguration of the officers of the school took place on Monday, November 3, 1873, at 3 p. m., Rev. H. E. Niles presiding. The program was as follows:

Doxology.

Reading the Scripture.

Invocation, Rev. George P. Robinson, of Lancaster, Pa.

Anthem, by the choir.

Address, Rev. H. E. Niles.

Address. Mr. Samuel Small, Sr., followed by the delivery of the deed to the Trustees and closing with the words, "And may God's blessing ever rest upon this Institute and make it a means of promoting sound Christian Education."

Prayer of Dedication, Rev. Dr. Wing, of Carlisle, Pa.

Music by the choir.

Installation of Rev. Mr. McDougall as President of the Institute, and of Mr. Heiges as Professor.

Inaugural Address of President McDougall.

Address by Prof. Heiges.

Music.

The Institute thus established and equipped continued without serious change until the year 1885, when two noteworthy events marked its history.

The first was the death of the venerable founder and President of the Board of Trustees, Mr. Samuel Small, Sr., who passed to his rest on the 14th of July, nearly eighty-six years of age.

The second event was the total destruction of the college building by fire, on the night of December 7th.

The founder's nephews, Messrs. W. Latimer, Samuel, and George Small, at once came to the rescue and determined to rebuild.

The York County Hospital was Providentially vacant and was immediately made ready for the school, and continued to accommodate them until the new building was completed, which was in March, 1887.

The new building was dedicated on Tuesday evening, March 15th, 1887, with the following exercises:

Called to order by the President, Rev. Dr. McDougall.

Opening prayer by Rev. T. M. Crawford, of Slate Hill, Pa.

Anthem by the College Choir.

Scripture reading by Rev. Dr. H. E. Niles.

Historical Sketch and Review of the Founder's Life, by Rev. Dr. McDougall.

Music.

Dedicatory Prayer, by Rev. Dr. Wing, of Carlisle, Pa.

Address, by Dr. Gilman, President of Johns Hopkins University, of Baltimore; subject: "The Optimism and Pessimism of the Day Contrasted."

Music.

Address by Governor Beaver, of Pennsylvania.

Dismission and general inspection of the building.

The new building was designed by J. A. Dempwolf. In its Memorial Hall, under the portrait of the founder, there is a polished brass plate with this inscription:

YORK COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

BUILT BY SAMUEL SMALL A. D. 1871.

DESTROYED BY FIRE, DECEMBER 7TH, 1885.

REBUILT BY HIS NEPHEWS A. D. 1886,

IN AFFECTIONATE MEMORY OF HIS CHARACTER

AS A CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN.

The new structure occupies the same site as its predecessor; but in the new design many defects of the old building have been removed, and many improvements made which add greatly to its capacity and convenience. We take pleasure in referring our patrons to the engraving which accompanies this catalogue. Adjacent to the main building and connected by a corridor, is the laboratory, in the basement of which is contained the steam apparatus for heating the buildings. By the isolation of the laboratory and furnace the risk of fire is reduced to a minimum.

Communicating with the Memorial Hall, and also by corridors with the several cloak rooms, is the main school room. This is located on the first floor, and is spacious, lofty, and well lighted, affording accommodation, with single desks, for 175 pupils without crowding, and is comfortably furnished, and arranged in accordance with the latest improvements in educational requirements.

In the wings and elsewhere are ample recitation rooms.

On the second floor, immediately over and equal in size to the main school room, is the Auditorium, with a seating capacity of six hundred.

The Cassat Library and Philosophical Hall are on the third floor.

The utmost attention has been given to the heating and ventilation of the entire building.

SAMUEL SMALL.
FOUNDER, AND FIRST PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES, 1871-'85.

Samuel Small was born in York, Pa., on the eve of the nineteenth century, July 25th, 1799. At the time of his birth the government of the United States was but an experiment, and its Constitution scarcely twelve years old. He lived to see all the wars of the Republic, its social and political progress, and the final establishment of its unique institutions.

To go back through three preceding generations, the great grandfather of Samuel Small was Lorentz Small, who, sometime previous to 1757, came from the Palatinate to these shores, and with others of his countrymen, brought the fertile fields of Southern Pennsylvania to their famous state of culture. He was a widower, with four sons and two daughters, whom he brought over with him. He settled in Hellam, a hamlet a few miles east of York.

Killian Small, the eldest of these sons, came to York, where seven sons were born to him, viz.: Jacob, John, George, Joseph, Peter, Michael, and Henry. As the third of these children, George Small, grew to manhood, he became identified with one of the land marks of the Borough of York, by assisting to build the old First Lutheran Church with its tall spire, and with another, by establishing, in 1809, the hardware store on "Small's Corner" of the Centre Square. He was a citizen of distinction, of business enterprise, and of high character. He married Anna Maria, daughter of Philip Albright, a Captain of the Pennsylvania Rifle Regiment in the war of the Revolution, and whose sword is still in possession of the family. To George and Anna Small there were born Cassandra, Philip Albright (named after his maternal grandfather), Samuel, and Alexander.

Samuel Small, the subject of this sketch, is thus associated directly on his mother's side and through her father, Capt. Philip Albright, with our Revolutionary history, and on his father's side through three preceding generations with all the early thrift and subsequent growth and prosperity of York County. He began his business career at the age of 16 years, when he went to Baltimore into the employment of Shultz, Konig & Co. They soon recognized his abilities and sent him to Pittsburg to open a branch store. Here he made a new departure by putting his goods on a flat boat and floating down the Ohio River in pursuit of trade. Reaching Cincinnati, he landed, and with the remainder of his goods he opened a store. In 1826, in response to urgent letters from home, he sold out his stock in Cincinnati and came back to York. He then engaged in business with George S. Morris, whose brother, Charles A., had married Mr. Small's sister Cassandra, and was afterward associated with Mr. Small in various benevolent enterprises. A few years later, George Small, wishing to retire from business, sold out his interest to his sons, Philip A. and Samuel, and thus, July 1, 1833, the firm of P. A. & S. Small was established. These men soon developed the store business into that varied and extensive trade in general merchandise, grain and iron, that has since made their name so widely and honorably known.

*This sketch is taken substantially from a memorial address delivered by Hou. John Gibson, on Founder's Day, April 14, 1886, in the First Presbyterian Church, of York, Pa.

Mr. Small was strongly attached to his nephews, the sons of that brother Philip with whom he was so long and amicably associated, and he confidently left to their hands the management of the business that he so faithfully followed to the end of his life.

As a citizen Mr. Small, while not at all inclined to public life, was yet so interested in the public welfare that he was ever appealed to in matters of general concern and his advice and experience were sought for in all the important affairs of the town and county.

Samuel Small was married on the 26th of March, 1834, to Isabella, a daughter of David Cassat, Esq., a distinguished member of the York Bar. The Cassat Library was presented to the York Collegiate Institute by Mrs. Small, and named in honor of her father, a benefactor in his day, and for twenty years a trustee of the York County Academy and an earnest advocate of public education. Another daughter of Mr. Cassat was married to Bird Coleman, Esq., of Cornwall, and from this relationship sprang the interest in the Collegiate Institute that led to the establishment of the Coleman Scholarship fund. Mr. Robert Coleman, a grandson of Bird Coleman, Esq., gave the original fund of $10,000, which, a few years later, was enlarged by Mr. Small.

From the family antecedents of Mr. Small, he was attached early in life to the great religious organization of his Palatine ancestors, the German Reformed church, a branch of the Pan-Presbyterian Council. Later (May 11, 1839) he became a member of the Presbyterian church of York. In 1850 he was made a ruling elder and continued in that office until the close of his life. As member at different times of Presbytery and Synod, he became identified with all the government and proceedings of the church.

The pastor of the Presbyterian church in York from October, 1793, was the Rev. Robert Cathcart, afterwards a Doctor of Divinity. His wife was Susan Latimer. Philip A. Small was married to Sarah Latimer, a niece of the wife of Dr. Cathcart, and thus the family was allied to the distinguished pastor.

Mr. Small evinced a lively interest in the great question of the Old and New School division, and in holding the church building here, which had been erected in 1785, for those who sympathized with their pastor, then Rev. Benjamin Wallace, and the New School Presbytery.

But Mr. Small's religious life was not bounded by church organization. It expressed itself in practical piety and found room for exercise in the many forms of philanthropy for which his name has become so widely known. It must suffice here merely to enumerate some of them.

When the congregation of the Presbyterian Church had outgrown its accommodations, it was by his liberality mainly that a new and handsome building was erected. As the work branched out he built and supported the Chapel on North Duke street for the mission workers there, and when the First Church swarmed again and the Calvary colony was sent out to South Duke street he contributed a large part of the funds for this new enterprise. The York Benevolent Association, an old institution of York, also claimed his interest, and when he became President of it, he gave freely of his means and time for its advancement. Associating with himself Mr. David Fahs, as adviser and assistant, he laid the foundation for the subsequent efficiency of the organization.

Another of Mr. Small's benevolent conceptions was the Orphans' Home, born of the exigencies of the Civil War and intended at first for soldiers' orphans. But it grew in spirit and scope until in February, 1865, it was chartered for the purpose of providing and educating friendless and destitute children generally. Mr. Small donated the ground and upon it a commodious building was erected at a cost of $40,000, under his direction and principally at his expense, aided by a large contribution by his friend, Mr. Charles A. Morris. In 1884 Mr. Small added a large extension for school and play rooms at a further expense of $8,000.

Another public benefaction to engage the sympathy of Mr. Small was the York Hospital and Dispensary, established in 1879. He suggested the necessity of such a hospital and donated the building and grounds. He then subscribed liberally for its support and entrusted the completion of the enterprise to the York County Medical Society. It was in this building that the Collegiate Institute found shelter and held its sessions in the interim (1886-7) between the loss of its own building by fire and the completion of the new structure. These are only some of his more prominent works. The ceaseless stream of his private charities deepened and widened with his years, but we may not trace its current here.

But Mr. Small was not only a philanthropist, but especially a Christian philanthropist, and the consummation of the grand idea of his life and the deep religious motive that underlay all his benevolence is best seen in the founding of the York Collegiate Institute. In his own words, "Being deeply impressed with the importance of increasing popular facilities for the intellectual and moral culture, and especially for the Christian education of youth [he would] lay the foundation for an enterprise for affording instruction not only in the ordinary branches of literature and science, but also in regard to the great end and business of life." His idea of "the great end and business of life" is best expressed in his own career.

The record of his crowning life work is attempted in the present memorial.

Mr. Small died on the 14th day of July, 1885, within ten days of what would have been the completion of his 86th year, leaving his widow and nephews to carry forward the many benevolent enterprises that had so filled his busy life.

"Thy bounties all were Christian, and I make
This record of thee for the Gospel's sake.
That th' incredulous themselves may see
Its use and power exemplified in thee."

REV. JAMES MCDOUGALL, PH. D.

FIRST PRESIDENT, 1873-'93.

REV. JAMES McDougall, Ph. D.

FIRST PRESIDENT OF THE INSTITUTE.

The Rev. James McDougall, Ph. D., the first President of the York Collegiate Institute, died at his home in York, on the Lord's Day, October 9th, 1892. In June, 1892, he completed his nineteenth year of arduous and successful service in the interests of this institution. After a brief rest, amid the mountains of New York State, while returning homeward to take up the duties of the twentieth year of his presidency, he was stricken with paralysis, in Philadelphia, on August 13th, 1892. His improvement was so rapid during the early part of his illness as to give good hopes for his recovery. But the improvement was only temporary, and his case was soon pronounced hopeless. Early in September he was brought to his home in York, where the tender ministrations of his family, the most skillful medical attendance and efficient nursing, and the affectionate solicitude of the entire community, were powerless to effect his restoration to health.

On Tuesday, October 12th, the citizens of York crowded the Auditorium of the Collegiate Institute, where the funeral services were held. The Rev. H. E. Niles, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, conducted the services, and was assisted by the Rev. G. L. Smith, of Calvary Church, and the Rev. C. A. Oliver, of the Westminster. Dr. Niles paid beautiful tribute to the life and life-work of President McDougall, and alluded to the loss sustained, not only by the family and intimate friends, but also by the Collegiate Institute, the community, the cause of education, and the church. The remains rested in Memorial Hall until Wednesday morning, when they were taken to Princeton, N. J., and there reverently deposited in the family lot in Princeton Cemetery.

President McDougall was born in Newark, N. J., May 11th, 1836. He was the second son of Rev. James McDougall and Julia Kitchell, being of Scotch Presbyterian ancestry. Shortly after his birth his parents removed to Huntingdon, Long Island, in which beautiful village his father resided for many years, as pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

In his seventeenth year he made public profession of faith in Christ, and from that time to the close of his life maintained an unfaltering Christian life, and witnessed a good confession. About the same time he entered the Junior Class in Princeton College, and was an honor-man in the Class of 1854. After teaching for a year at Montclair, N. J., he entered Princeton Theological Seminary, where he pursued his studies with marked ability for four years, until the Spring of 1859. During his seminary course he held the position of Tutor of Mathematics in Princeton College, then proving what became more and more marked in later life, his rare genius for teaching.

In 1859 he assumed the pastoral charge of the Ainslie Street Presbyterian Church, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and about the same time was married to Miss Virginia D. Coryell, of Princeton, who, with two daughters and three sons, survives him.

As a pastor Mr. McDougall was faithful and well beloved, always displaying a sturdy manhood and sound judgment, coupled with a fine genial nature and genuine piety. As a preacher he was pre-eminently intellectual and instructive, being always a most gifted teacher, whether in the pulpit or the school room.

In 1866 he resigned his charge and entered the school room once more, as proprietor and principal of Hosack Hall, a prominent classical school in New York City. He again entered the pastorate in 1870, responding to the call of the Presbyterian Church of Babylon, L. I. After three years of active and successful service in this charge, he was providentially drawn again into the sphere for which he was so peculiarly fitted, that of a teacher. In 1868, he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Princeton College.

The consecrated wealth of the late Samuel Small had founded and equipped the York Collegiate Institute. To find the right man, with the requisite endowments of mind and heart, proved by experience, to undertake the direction and management of the great enterprise was the responsible task now pressing upon Mr. Small and those associated with him. In later years the honored founder often remarked that it was in direct answer to prayer that Dr. McDougall was sent to be the first President of the institution. Mr. Small and Dr. McDougall worked with perfect unanimity in shaping the course and carrying on the work of the College. The noble, philanthropic designs of the founder were carried forward into practical realization under the efficient administration of the President.

Dr. McDougall's life and work were such as to leave an indelible impress upon the teachers and students who came under his influence during those almost twenty years. All these teachers and students found him a kind and wise friend, upon all he exerted that strong formative influence that belongs to the rarest and noblest characters. Nor was his influence circumscribed by the walls of the College or the numbers of his classes. In labors abundant, in season and out of season, as teacher and preacher, as citizen and neighbor, as a man of letters and talent, and yet full of gracious sympathy with the humble and unlearned, as a genial companion and a true and considerate friend, he became known to all the people of the community and to a wide circle of friends remote from the scene of his life work, and wherever known he was honored and beloved.

YORK COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOUNDATION.

The York Collegiate Institute was founded by Samuel Small, to furnish the elements of a solid education at a small expense, so as to be practically within the reach of all.

To carry out this purpose he selected an eligible site in the Borough of York, comprising a half square of ground, erected a commodious building, furnished and equipped it thoroughly, and beautified the surrounding lawn, and laid out ample play grounds. He also provided a dwelling for the President of the Faculty and a boarding house adjoining for the accommodation of teachers and pupils from a distance. He conveyed the whole property to a Board of Trustees, in trust forever, and provided a liberal and ample endowment.

This endowment has been increased by the generosity of the founder's widow, the late Mrs. Isabel C. Small.

There is also a Scholarship endowment for the benefit of students who are preparing for the ministry.

The Cassat Library was a gift to the Institute, and consists of more than two thousand volumes, specially selected.

DESIGN.

The design of the Founder contemplated a thorough course of academic instruction and training, combined with practical Christian culture, and the distinctive aim of the Institution is to develop the moral along with the intellectual faculties, and inspire a love for learning and a genuine reverence for the sacred truths of our Christian religion.

The design is based on a broad and liberal catholicity, which is maintained purely and strictly without sectarian bias; and the administration of the school is pledged to absolute impartiality in regard to religious faith, and perfect respect for all. In all that pertains to this feature of the Institute the purpose is simply to maintain the healthful atmosphere of a Christian home.

The duties of each day begin with a short religious service; and every Wednesday afternoon there is a closing service consisting of a lecture and worship.

There is systematic instruction upon the main facts in the Bible once a week, covering the general outlines of Old Testament History, the life of Christ and the labors of the Apostles.

ENTRANCE.

Applicants for admission to the lowest class must pass an examination in spelling, reading, writing, intermediate geography, grammar and arithmetic through common and decimal fractions.

COURSES OF STUDY.

The studies pursued embrace a Classical and Scientific Course. Both are arranged to prepare students for the Freshman Class of any American college or scientific school; and the scientific Course is also especially adapted to secure broad, liberalizing and practical instruction and training for those who may not intend to pursue their studies further at any other institution.

Girls are allowed to enter fully upon either of these courses, on equal footing with the boys.

THE MATHEMATICAL DEPARTMENT comprises a complete course in Arithmetic, including the metric system and commercial practice, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry and Surveying, including field work. For this latter subject the department is well equipped with an excellent transit and other necessary instruments. It also provides a practical course in Bookkeeping and two years work in Mechanical Draughting, including the usual geometrical work, perspective, and drawing from objects: it further offers post graduate studies in Analytical Geometry and other higher branches.

CHEMISTRY. Recitations from Shepard's Inorganic Chemistry are held throughout the third year; problems in stoichiometry and the writing of reactions are given prominent attention. The student is put to work in the laboratory from the very beginning, and is first taught manipulation and the observation of chemical phenomena. This is followed by a course of general experiments, which the student is required to perform, as far as possible, himself. Notes are required on all work done. After finishing this course, qualitative analysis is begun and continued through the Senior year. For those who wish to carry the subject further, the laboratory is equipped with a balance, graduated vessels, and other apparatus for quantitative work.

An outline of organic chemistry is given from a full set of notes at the conclusion of the course in inorganic chemistry.

PHYSICS. The course in Physics extends over two years. The work of the first year is mainly descriptive and experimental. In the second year, while experimentation is still continued to some extent, attention is given chiefly to the mathematical application of physical laws. Gage's text books are used.

MINERALOGY. Dana's Manual is used in connection with the study of several hundred specimens. Blowpipe analysis is continued during two terms. Crystallography receives due attention, and is illustrated by a set of models of the principal forms of the six systems.

GEOLOGY. In connection with recitations from Winchell's Geological Studies, typical rocks, minerals, and fossils are examined. The class is also taken out for field work.

The collections intended to illustrate these subjects are by no means complete, and we would earnestly request all who are interested to aid us in enlarging them.

Presentations. By Ralph W. Immel, '92, Azurite; by J. Willis Crever, ex. '93, Scolithus linearis, Mesozoic fossils; by Fred. D. Stichter, '93, Productus semireticularis, Spirifera carteri, Crinoidal flint rock.

Students who wish to pursue any special subject will have every facility offered them for their chosen work.

PARTIAL AND SPECIAL STUDENTS.

Students whose age or circumstances do not admit of their taking the full course, may pursue a briefer and simpler one, to be regulated by the Faculty. On account of youth or immaturity, it is often advisable for a scholar to spend two years' upon a given year of the course. This is better than to be advanced too rapidly.

MATERIAL FACILITIES.

In addition to the regular courses of study the students are afforded opportunities for the best instruction in Instrumental and Vocal Music, and in Drawing and Painting.

The Philosophical Hall is furnished with complete apparatus for pursuing researches in Physics, and a large and valuable collection of minerals illustrates the study of Geology and Mineralogy.

The Chemical Laboratory, which is detached from the main building, is complete in all its appointments, and supplied with the most modern appliances for practical work.

The Cassat Library, containing more than two thousand well selected volumes of choice literature, affords opportunity for private research and advanced literary culture.

The Gymnasium is equipped for systematic training, which is especially important during the winter season and when the weather forbids outdoor exercise.

PUBLIC EXERCISES.

The students of the Senior Class deliver orations and read essays and theses at a public entertainment held at the close of the first term.

Founder's Day is observed on April 14th, as a holiday, and a literary address, by one of the Alumni, is delivered in the evening. The orator for 1893 was Rev. John A. Muir, class of '79.

The Phi Sigma Society, which is maintained by the young men, with the co-operation of the Faculty, holds weekly meetings, with the usual literary and parliamentary exercises. The Society also holds semi-annual evening receptions for invited guests.

The Society of the Alumni, numbering now (1893) 184 members, holds an annual reception in the evening of Founder's Day (April 14th). The President of the Society, for the current year, is Rev. Harry Anstadt, of '87, York, Pa. The Corresponding Secretary is Miss Clara Bressler, of York, Pa.

BOARDING.

Under the supervision of the President of the Faculty, arrangements may be made for students, who are not residents of York, to secure suitable accommodations in private boarding houses. The regulations in these cases are such as experience suggests to be the best for the safety and well being of the students and the good reputation of the Institute. The Expense varies from $3 75 to $5 per week.

EXPENSES.

The ample endowment of the Institute renders it possible for the tuition to be placed at the nominal sum of $40 per annum, which is payable in proportionate amounts at the beginning of each term, viz :

First term, Sept. 11th, '93,		$20
Second term, Feb. 5th, '94.		20

EXTRAS.

Music, Piano, ...	$40 per annum
Type Writing, ...	10 " "
Chemistry, chemicals, ...	5 " "
breakage, ...	actual cost.
Drawing and Painting and Modeling in Clay, (under the charge of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Barnitz), charged in proportion to the advancement of the student and the amount of time given.

DISCOUNT AND RAILROAD FARES.

A discount of fifty per cent. is allowed to children of clergymen of any religious denomination, and of ten per cent. to a family furnishing more than one student.

New students are charged from the date of their entrance, and all students to the end of each current term.

In case of protracted absence on account of sickness or other just cause, students are charged one-half the regular amount for the time they are absent.

Commutation tickets may be procured at a low rate from the railroads for the use of students who come in to attend the Institute in the morning and return in the evening.

SCHOLARSHIPS.

The Coleman Scholarship Fund yields an annual income of $150 each for seven scholarships, payable at the end of each quarter. These scholarships are awarded by the Board of Trustees, and are available to aid in defraying the expenses of students while they are at the Institute preparing for college, and who intend to enter the ministry of the Presbyterian Church. Students desiring scholarships must be recommended as candidates for the ministry by their Presbytery to the Westminster Presbytery, and be approved by the Faculty and Trustees. There will be several vacancies the coming year. An applicant for a scholarship should be prepared to enter the second year of the Classical Course.

Correspondence is invited on this subject, to be addressed either to the President of the Board of Trustees or the President of the Faculty.
